

Wise Women

Wise Women?

That name of our weekly book discussion group allows for a chuckle; we say it with tongue in cheek.

The wisest thing we do is commit to meeting every Thursday to talk about the section (25 – 40 pages) of our current book. We learn a lot reading good books and discussing them and we learn from each other. It's good fun, but serious, too.

We alternate the kind of books we read – theological books with novels. We just finished How To Read The Bible by Harvey Cox and are starting Lucy Barton by Elizabeth Strout, one of our favorite authors. The ideas for the books come from members, and often our leader, Elin Stetz, suggests a title.

After meeting for many years at Luther House, we have moved to Room 7 in Grace's education wing.

We start at noon or when enough of us have gathered. Our meeting is supposed to be just an hour, but rarely do we close at 1:00. Of course, if people have to leave before we finish, they do. Consider joining us; we are enriched by new voices and ideas.
